

ILLINI AND MAROONS FLOUNDER IN HOPELESS MUD

COMINSKY IS BAD WITNESS
FOR HIMSELFPathetically Confused
Under Cross-Examination Friday

(Telegraph Special Service)
Morrison, Ill., Nov. 7.—John Cominsky of Cottonwoods, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Mary McKee, night telephone operator at Fulton, with whom it is charged he was infatuated, on the night of Sept. 23, took the stand in his own defense Friday afternoon and denied having killed the woman.

But on cross-examination he proved a pathetically poor witness, and finally became so entangled in his answers that his attorney, J. J. Ludeke of Sterling, bowed his head and interposed few further objections to the state's questions. Cominsky became so erratic and confused in his statements concerning his arrest in June, when he was discovered by Fulton police on the roof of a shed adjacent to the telephone office, that it was almost impossible to determine what he meant to testify.

In that occasion he was arrested while in possession of a chisel, with which, the state charges, he was attempting to open the same window through which the murderer entered on the night of Sept. 23.

Cominsky resumed the stand this morning and was calmer. A few minor witnesses were put on the stand by the defense this morning and when they concluded their evidence at 1:45 o'clock, court adjourned until Monday morning when the arguments of the attorneys will be made.

Summary State Evidence.

A summary of the evidence against Cominsky, the presentation of which came to an end just before the noon recess Friday is:

Martin Bielsma, deputy sheriff—Found body of Marie McKee in Fulton telephone office on morning of September 23—Told of layout of telephone exchange, and position of body in a bed in the bedroom, and of finding of screen knocked out of southeast window. Identified screen offered by state in evidence, which had been removed.

Dorothy Gallagher, telephone operator—Told of leaving exchange at 7:10 the night of the murder and of visiting the offices, with Deputy Sheriff Bielsma the morning of September 23rd when the body was found. Said she knew Marie McKee had gun in the telephone offices but it was not loaded.

Aida Bouvia, telephone operator—Said she left the telephone exchange at 10 o'clock the night of September 23rd when Marie McKee relieved her from duty. When she left Marie was alone in the exchange.

Deputy Sheriff Kelly, finger-print expert—Told of taking section of screen door sash, with finger-prints, to Chicago Bureau of Identification.

Dr. W. K. Farley, Fulton—Told of wounds on body of Marie McKee and said death was due to strangulation. Marks indicated strangler had large hands. Said girl's body had been covered with blanket after she was dead.

Dr. Vanderland, Fulton—Said he had examined the body and the girl had not been ravished. Found cut nails, weed seeds, and small leaves in bed. Found tufts of the girl's hair, one on her throat, others in the bed. Found handkerchief and another rag in the bed. Identified blankets and other bed clothing offered as exhibit.

Sheriff Arthur E. Hamilton of Whiteside county—Identified blankets and other exhibits and said they were intact as found the morning after the murder and had not been added to or interfered with.

John K. Lorenzen, brother of Marie McKee—Answering questions of counsel gave facts as to age and occupation of Marie McKee.

Walter Dana, motorcycle policeman—Told of arrest of John Cominsky in June on the roof back of telephone exchange and of chisel alleged to belong to Cominsky which it is said he was going to use to open a rear window.

George Goff, city marshal, Fulton—Gave evidence about the chisel and arrest of Cominsky in June.

Wm. M. Evans, finger-print expert with Chicago Bureau of Identification—Said he had developed finger-prints taken from screen from telephone office window, compared them with prints from hands of John Cominsky, and found the prints of the middle finger of the right hand exactly correspond with prints taken from the screen.

Ralph McLarnan, telephone employee, Fulton—Testified he had put socks and bolts on the doors and windows of telephone exchange on June 1.

Charles C. Neff, telephone employee, Fulton—Said two weeks before the murder he found screws torn out of southeast window of the exchange.

Second Frigid
Wave of Eskimo
Summer is Coming

Chicago, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A cold wave, the second of the "Eskimo Summer" was on the weather charts for this section of mid-west as the temperature dropped to zero in North Dakota.

Besides the cold high era in the northwest, a southwestern storm, with snow and sleet in some sections west of the Mississippi river was rushing northeastward with increasing energy. The center of this storm was in the Ozark mountains.

A drop of about 24 degrees to around 20 degrees above zero in Chicago tonight was anticipated with fair weather and much colder tomorrow.

Rain today was expected to turn to snow before tonight accompanied by strong northwest winds.

TEXAS SENATOR
SPOKE TO ANTI-SALOON LEAGUEU. S. Senator Shepard
Speaker at Session in Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Prohibition is one of the most powerful forces for the promotion of the principles that have given our country leadership from the beginning of history, said Senator Morris Shepard of Texas in an address prepared for delivery to the Anti-Saloon League convention today. Senator Shepard presented in the United States senate, the resolution to adopt the 18th amendment.

"It was never intended that the fight against the liquor traffic should cease with the adoption of the 18th amendment and the various acts for its enforcement," he continued. "In fact, everything that was said against the traffic has been more than justified by its continued, persistent, cynical and reckless defiance of the law. It knows no constitution, no law, no honor, no morality, no flag, no God. Here lies the challenge of the present hour to America."

"No constitution and no law is able to enforce itself. We have driven the liquor traffic from the open. We must follow it to its secret lairs and destroy it. The victories of civilization must constantly be repeated. The 18th amendment and the acts for its enforcement, mark a turning point in the economic as well as the moral history of the world. Any compromise restoring intoxicants in any guise will mean the ultimate return of the saloon or its equivalent."

Highways to Chicago
Choked Despite Weather
Kankakee, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Handicaps of dreaching rain, slippery pavements, tire trouble and wet skids were not sufficient to stem the throng of motorists which passed through here all day, bound to the Illinois-Chicago football game at Champaign. Several cars left the road to repose briefly in ditches, but no serious accidents were reported here.

The Paxton police department reported heavy sales of liquor merchants of rain coats, boots, slickers and other storm-proof garments, but had not learned of any one suffering serious mishap.

Highways from Chicago to Urbana were choked today with a steady stream of automobiles bound from the whole Chicago district.

SYRIAN REVOLT
SPREADING LATE
NEWS DISCLOSESProvisional Governments
Being Set Up in Various Sections

Paris, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Unofficial advices relate that the rebellious movement in Syria is increasing in strength and that provisional governments are being established by the insurgents in various sections of the country where they are in control. At Damascus, it is said, a provisional government has been set up, with Ramadan Pasha Ibn Shellash as military governor and Messid Bey Bakry, civil governor.

The French have evacuated the large fortified camp of Moussefria, in the Druse territory south of Suedia. The Hela-Damascus railroad has been cut and the town of Derat, seven miles south of Damascus, is in the hands of Druses.

To the north of Damascus, a large part of the country is reported to be under control of the rebels. The Homs district is held by them and the city of Homs is besieged.

The withdrawal of the French from Moussefria, according to the French official advices, took place without incident and was due to a regrouping of the French forces.

Meanwhile Damascus is sorely beset. The Djebel Druses still surround the already battered city, with which communication is reported to have been completely severed by cutting of the railway, telephone and telegraph.

Unanimous Support for New Tax Bill is Likely

Washington, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Practically united support both in the house and in committee of the tax reduction bill, in preparation by the house ways and means committee—an almost unprecedented prospect—is now confidently expected by house leaders.

With virtually all of the vital and controversial points of tax reduction already acted upon by the committee, Chairman Green declared today that a non-partisan measure "bearing almost unanimous support" seems certain.

"SOUL" MURDER
CASE PRESENTS
UNUSUAL PLEASAged Doctor Claims a
Right to Kill Imbecile Child

Littleton, Colo., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Is there a soul in the body of a speechless, malformed imbecile? Is there ever any justification for taking human life?

These questions and more of a kindred nature pressed onward to a definite legal answer today as the state continued to place its witnesses on the stand in the case of Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer, who is on trial for the slaying of the "child woman" who never grew up—his 24-year-old daughter, Hazel.

With the background a picture of a helpless cripple, painted in words by witnesses yesterday, the state today planned to call to the stand expert witnesses to prove the sanity of the aged physician, whose defense, in part, is temporary insanity.

Blazer's plea, however, is coupled with others—that the "thing" he slew had no soul and that it was no crime to remove "it" as a burden to the Blazer family.

PROHIBITION LAW
ENFORCEMENT UP TO HOME OFFICERS

—SECRETARY ANDREWS

Treasury Official Who Directs
Dry Work at League Meeting

Chicago, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury today called on all states and communities to encourage the resumption of home rule in the enforcement of prohibition. Only by such an effort, he declared, could the federal agents be removed from the status of village policemen.

Addressing the national convention of the Anti-Saloon League, the treasury official who is the directing head of all federal prohibition enforcement declared the department had now concentrated its efforts upon dividing the work equally between the state and federal authorities, in order that there may be "more punch" in law enforcement, "more speed" and understanding in permissive work and an avoidance of over lapping of duties.

Explaining in some detail the recent reorganization of the federal enforcement machinery, Mr. Andrews said he believed important progress had been made in the direction of better enforcement. He emphasized that it was his policy to fight vigorously the big operators in the illegitimate liquor traffic and at the same time to protect in every way the legitimate industry in its use of industrial alcohol or production of cereal beverages.

Not Alone Responsible

"The public is constantly holding the prohibition forces responsible for the enforcement of the prohibition laws," Mr. Andrews continued. "We are not alone responsible. And a public realization of this fact is vital to their successful enforcement."

"In reality, the treasury can do little without the full support and cooperation of the judicial machinery. Our duty is two-fold—to collect the evidence of law violation and present it to the district attorney and to supervise and regulate the source of supply for legitimate traffic as well as prevent the use of these sources of illegitimate traffic. In both these phases of our work, success depends upon the prompt, sympathetic action of the judicial machinery."

"We share with the Department of Justice, the responsibility for this law enforcement. It is essential, therefore, that public opinion be focused upon the work of the district attorneys and the judges as well as upon the work of the prohibition agents."

"This brings me directly to the reason for my presence here today. It is very clear to me that the successful outcome of this prohibition law demands on the part of all organizations interested in community welfare as affected by prohibition, that they seriously and vigorously resume the campaign designed to bring about a state of mind in the communities which not only believe in prohibition, but insist upon its observance and enforcement, particularly by those holding public office."

Must Have Home Rule

Mr. Andrews regretted that the prohibition unit of the treasury had been treated unfairly. He told the Anti-Saloon League representatives that although they believed in the operation, they should nevertheless been standing back and leaving it to the federal government to enforce. Such an attitude among local communities put a burden on the federal government which it cannot carry and which the law never intended that it should carry," he said, adding that "local police work must be done by home governments."

Taking the position that the federal government will have done its full share when it eliminates the sources of supply and the inter-community traffic in liquor, Mr. Andrews said the government "can hope to do this," only if its energies may be confined to that task.

Centralized Gov't. Wild

Centralized government is running wild in this country, Edwin A. Olson, U. S. Attorney for the northern district of Illinois, said in an address before the league today.

"If local and state law enforcement officials," he said, "refuse to protect us from criminals, then let the criminals operate until the people get sufficient courage to provide themselves with the proper local government which they are now paying for and not getting."

"The personal liberty shouters, whose most precious plank is local self government, are the ones who are clamoring loudest for help from the federal government to free them from the clutches of the criminals in their respective law-breaking communities. They don't know what liberty means. The only thing that regulates them is their thirst."

"You men and women can do much to restore the rights of local self government to the people, and that is the crying need of the hour."

"If we had honest local law enforcement," he said.

AGED WOMAN IS FOUND DYING IN HER DOOR YARDMrs. Hannah Fischer is Victim Heart Attack
Late Yesterday

Mrs. Hannah M. Fischer dropped dead in the yard at her home on Monroe avenue and Second street Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock while raking leaves and covering flower beds. Mrs. Fischer was seen working about the yard at her home immediately after the dinner hour, and shortly before 3 o'clock, Mrs. Walter Thurm and Mrs. Gertrude Boehme, on their way downtown, saw the body of the aged lady lying on the ground beside a tub and rake.

They notified Harry Himes, who resides across the street, and then hurried to her, but life was almost extinct. The body was removed to the Preston mortuary where Corner F. M. Banker of Franklin Grove conducted an inquest this morning. The jury returned a verdict finding that death was due to chronic myocarditis, contributory to infirmities.

Mrs. Hannah M. Fischer was born in St. Louis, Mo., May 1, 1846, and came to Dixon in 1866, having resided here for the past 64 years. Her husband preceded her in death in 1892. Four children survive: Mrs. Pauline Kerr Robinson of Rockford, who arrived last evening with her son to take charge of the remains; Mrs. Emma Bergman of White Rock, S. D.; A. Amboy High School's Goal Line is Crossed

(Telegraph Special Service)
Amboy, Nov. 7.—The Amboy township high school football team had their goal line crossed for the first time this season yesterday afternoon when the Bureau township high school sent over a single touchdown, but Amboy maintained its record of winning every game, the final score being 27 to 6 in Amboy's favor. Neither of the contesting teams had their goal lines crossed this year and it was the hardest fought battle in the history of the local school.

Coach Dommett has assembled a strong, hard fighting aggregation of players this season in the best team Amboy has ever produced. Byers, Ziegler and Kuhn were the outstanding stars of yesterday's conflict and plowed through the Bureau line for long gains.

With the unusual success of the team, the local business men are rallying strongly to the support of the team. This spirit of support has reached a point where it is said a challenge for a post-season game will be hurled at the winner of the Rock River conference football championship this year. An effort is also to be made to bring the Amboy and Dixon high school teams together for a post-season game.

Aurora Woman Killed in Peculiar Accident

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Harold Olson, 28, Aurora, was killed early this morning in an automobile accident while on the way to the Illinois-Chicago football game. Mrs. Olson was in a car driven by her husband which collided with a machine driven by R. C. Scheets, owner of the Aurora Milling Company. The Olson car and the one driven by Scheets had been traveling with bright lights in order to see the road through a downpour. Drivers of both cars put on dimmers as they approached and Olson applied brakes in order to keep from running off the road in the impenetrable blackness that came with the turning off of bright lights. His car skidded and sideswiped that of Scheets. Mrs. Olson was thrown against a door edge and her skull fractured. Mr. and Mrs. William Noble also passengers in the Olson car were injured, but not seriously. Neither machine turned over.

Ministers Hear of Work of Dixon Public Hospital

At the ministers' meeting this week Dr. Kenyon B. Segner gave a very interesting address on the work of the Dixon Public Hospital. His message was well prepared, giving facts, incidents, etc., which were the means of enlightening those present as to the present needs of the hospital.

The doctor spoke of three institutions, naming the hospital, the school and the church as indispensable to our community. "The fact that the hospital is ours as a city ought to command the hearty support and interest of every citizen," he said. His message was appreciated and it is hoped that it will be made possible to have it brought before the people of our city in such a way that they will be aroused sufficiently to do something that will bring our hospital up to a standard that it well deserves. Among the out-of-town visitors present were Rev. Shull of Springfield and Rev. Williamson of Rock Island.

ILLINI FIELD
"BOGGY MESS"
UNDER RAINSGreat Throng Crowded
Into Stadium for Biggest Game

BULLETIN.

McCarty, Chicago fullback, made a touchdown, the first of the game, a few minutes after the second period started.

Score: Chicago, 6; Illinois, 0.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Masses of the 70,000 persons who came to see Red Grange swim or plow in or upon the football field formed rushes against the stores when they arrived for the annual Illinois-Chicago game.

The steady downpour was a great boon to all merchants selling oil cloth, rubbers, umbrellas and awning material and at noon these stocks were exhausted except for awning and similar goods.

Grange, who with his team mates had been quartered over night at the Champaign Country Club, was expected to be slowed up more than was the case a week ago when he, assisted by his mates, defeated Pennsylvania on a wet field.

Field a Boggy Mess.

The Illinois Memorial Stadium field is but two years old and the rain of last night and today had made it a boggy mess.

The rain not only helped the merchants, but also the news boys, every stray copy of a newspaper having been sold before noon to help the damp but still enthusiastic fans maintain their optimism. Many of the incoming ticket holders, the majority of whom came from Chicago on special trains, arriving 20 minutes apart, went direct to the stadium, but others thronged to the hotel and the downtown sidewalks, an unusual sight in their oil cloth hat protrusions, improvised hats and awaiting game time at 2 p. m.

Big Crowd Present.

From 68,000 to 70,000 spectators, undimmed by the persistent downpour, sat in the rain-soaked stadium to pay tribute to Illinois-Chicago gridiron rivalry and to Red Grange, making his last championship appearance on the gridiron that started him to fame three years ago, and the wretched condition of the field, a quagmire of slippery mud, dotted with pools of water, Chicago with its heavy plunging backfield, started the game a slight favorite.

The never ending stream of spectators, wearing improvised oilcloth slickers to protect them from the rain, had the appearance of a parade of Klansmen as they choked the stadium. As soon as the twenty-two special trains from Chicago unloaded their cargo of football fans, they besieged stores, quickly exhausting the supply of slickers, oil cloth and even awning material.

Illini Get Great Cheer.

When Captain Grange and his players swarmed into the field for their limbering up practice, they were rubberized pants. Grange and his mates were accorded a deafening ovation, the crowd arising and cheering for at least a minute. Coach Zuppke planned to start the same team that swamped Pennsylvania a week ago.

The ball was rubbed with resin in an attempt to make it less slippery.

Aside from the relative scantiness of wheat supplies in this country, word of unfavorable weather conditions from time to time in Australia, Canada and Argentina acted also as a stimulus toward an advance in values. Assertions that the outlook for the new winter wheat crop in the United States is unpromising were likewise the subject of considerable notice, especially reference to seedling yields as well as to prevalence of Hessian fly in Kansas, Illinois and Nebraska. On the other hand, news thence the harvest in the southern hemisphere has already begun was something of an offset as the week drew to an end.

Husking delays due to wet weather have given more firmness to the corn market than has been the rule recently.

Demand for oats was a little slack. Enlarged buying for Europe had a good deal to do with the advance of the provision market.

Gang of Bombers of Non-Union Garages is Charged
Chicago, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Chicago Journal published a story today that private detectives had uncovered an organization of bombers who had conspired to attack non-union automobile mechanics and that six garages in Chicago Heights and three in Joliet had been bombed.

An operative of the detective agency was sent to Joliet where he was employed as an automobile mechanic. An agent called on him and he quit work, agreeing to go on strike.

Through his ready acquiescence, another man named dynamite in Chicago and that he would make a bomb. He made a "dud" and when it was placed near a garage, police and detectives arrested Daniel Plazas who was shot when he fled and now is in St. Joseph's Hospital in Joliet.

Other members of the band are said to be under surveillance.

EXPANSION TO BE SLOGAN OF TOASTMASTERS

Popular Club is Starting Out in Spirited Manner

To the long list of successful Toastmasters' meetings, another has been added. A splendid and enthusiastic turnout on Thursday evening turned into fact the optimistic assertion that this year was to be a year of vigorous expansion for the club. The meeting was opened at 6:15 by Rev. Carlson who gave a short prayer.

A dinner in which the "stick-to-the-rib" and the gastronomical qualities were ideally combined was served. Frank Suter who has frequently "said it with fruit" to the club, spoke this time with a crate of delicious grapes. A. E. Conrad led the singing for the evening and provoked melody all the way from "America" to "Old Black Joe."

The day had been set aside by the program committee as President's day, and all numbers had been prepared with the idea of bringing out the duties of a president of any Service Organization. Niles Palmer, one of the newest members of the club, spoke on the subject, "What a President Learns." Mr. Palmer emphasized the fact that a president to be successful must learn to subordinate himself to the wishes of the organization and become a real servant.

Mr. Caughey spoke on "The Duties of a President," stressing the duties laid down according to Parliamentary custom. Courtesy, firmness and absolute fairness are essential in the successful chairman. Earl Kennedy spoke on the "Duties of a President Outside of the Meeting," pointing out that it was up to a President to keep all departments, committees and groups functioning. Dr. E. C. Smith spoke very feelingly upon the subject, "The Best President." Mr. Smith saw the club as something more than a mere organization bound together by a set of by-laws or constitution; to him a worthwhile organization must have ideals, ideals which must be lived up to. The best president would be the president who never permitted himself or his organization to lose sight of or cease working toward the ideals set by the group.

After the speeches A. G. Harris took the chair and conducted a spirited session in parliamentary law. Motions were made and remade, discussion was rapid-fire and to the point. At 8:00 o'clock promptly a motion for adjournment was made, seconded and carried.

This meeting was declared a success by every member and visitor present; the general participation and the enthusiasm marked it as more than a success, rather a prophecy of an extremely active year. Five applications for membership were read to the club, these to be voted upon at the next regular meeting.

The Toastmasters' Club has not only had no one come to stay, but to take an increasingly active part in community activity through the increased ability of its members to act as officers in other organizations. The motto of the club, "Development of Self for Service," offers such a heavy program of activity that the club finds its hands full in handling the training of its members, these members having the opportunity to serve their community through other organizations better equipped to carry on direct project work.

Conditions of Living
Highest in U. S. History
Washington, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Material conditions of living for the American people during the last year have been the highest in all history. Secretary Hoover declared today in an economic review made public as part of the annual report of the commerce department.

Factors listed by the secretary as contributing to this condition, included a practically complete absence of unemployment, high wages, efficient railroad operation, an equitable balance of prices as among the greater producing groups of the population and a gradual return to stable currencies and normal business operations among the nations abroad.

KNOCKING—

We all have our faults and our drawbacks, no doubt. The world was created that way. The man who is perfect has yet to come out. There is no such person, they say.

I mention the fact as a friendly tip, for it's one that we likely all need. Watch out for yourself, lest you're due for a slap in the back, if you're planting the seed.

It's always too easy to talk about, folk, and find lots of fault with their being. And though it is oftentimes done in a joke, you'll always find listeners agreeing.

Most knocking that's done is a senseless affair, and it just makes the knocker look small. Whenever you have such opinions to air, it is best you don't air them at all.

To criticize people is all very bad, so the next time expressions are loosed, forget all the knockers that you ever have had. Speak only in terms of a boast.

Missionary Meeting Was Much Enjoyed

A very pleasant and profitable meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church met with Mrs. Carl Buchner at her hospitable home on Thursday afternoon with sixty-two in attendance. The meeting opened with singing the official hymn of the society, "The Kings Highway." The devotions were conducted by Mrs. Addie Fordham. After the business was taken care of, Mrs. Rowe very ably gave the second chapter in the study book, "Prayer and Missions." Mrs. John Wells delighted all with several readings. She was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Niles Palmer. An interesting leaflet was read by Miss Estella Anderson. A vocal number by Genevieve Randall, Deloris and Bernadine Shawyer was much enjoyed. Reverend and Mrs. Carlson favored with a vocal duet and at a hearty applause responded to an encore. This closed a very enjoyable program. Prayer by Rev. Carlson and the meeting adjourned, after which a social hour was enjoyed as refreshments were served.

ENTERTAINED WITH A BRIDGE LUNCHEON—

Mrs. Ira Hartman delightfully entertained three tables at a bridge luncheon at her home on Saturday afternoon. Those present were Mrs. J. W. Dale, Mrs. Stanwood Griffith, Mrs. Wallace Clover, Mrs. Henry Stephan, Mrs. Carson Cross, Mrs. George Stephan, Mrs. John Chartera, Mrs. J. M. Bergeson, Mrs. Clarence Paddock, Mrs. Edward Kersten, and the Misses Mildred Griffith, Lola Quick and Mildred Paddock. Mrs. Stanwood Griffith won first prize and Mrs. J. W. Dale won the consolation prize.

A delicious two-course luncheon consisting of chicken patties, sandwiches, olives, cake, fruit salad and coffee was served by the hostess, and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent by the ladies.—Ashton Gazette.

ROSE BUSH GREW TWO PECULIAR FRUITS—

Dayton, O., Oct. 29.—A specimen of freak fruit is on its way today to Luther Burbank, the California plant wizard. No one knows what it is, but the facts are these:

H. E. Paul had an ordinary garden variety of rose bush growing between an apple and a peach tree. From the rose bush he gathered two strange fruits. One he cut open. It has the skin of a green peach; the meat of an apple and the seed of a peach within which there were forty apple seeds.

Pollination of the blossoms is believed impossible due to the fact that both trees bloomed before the rose bush did.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

"Late as usual, my dear—terribly sorry!"

You can always depend upon Madeline to greet you with these words when she meets you for an appointment.

And you can always depend upon it she will be anywhere from half an hour to two hours late before she greets you.

No one ever knew her to be on time. Possibly she has bestirred herself when she had to make a train or get to a bargain sale at an advantageous hour, but for social engagements, she regards time as purely a relative matter, something to approximate, possibly, but not to motivate one's moves.

It would never occur to her to get up an hour earlier in order to get to an appointment on time, or cut short a shopping jaunt or leave an interesting gossipfest.

Her own time isn't particularly valuable. Most of it is spent amusing, or attempting to amuse herself. And it never occurs to her that the time of others is any more important, or is something she shouldn't squander and waste for them.

Madeline has never had a job of any sort. It is unfortunate that she has not, just so that she might gain some idea of the importance of them.

About the time she had been dismissed four or five times because she couldn't get down on time in the morning, the clock would become a more important factor in her life.

And if she had just one hour for luncheon, and had waited on the corner for some dear friend more than half that time, she would come to realize that one o'clock is a definite hour.

Of course, there are many instances where one is unavoidably late. But there are many women, and men too, who never make any effort to be on time.

One of the most inconsiderate things we do is to waste the time of others. One of the most annoying things that can happen to us is to have our valuable time wasted by someone else.

The day is much too short for busy people. There is by no means time to do, even if everything goes on schedule time and we have no interruptions.

Time is much more valuable than money. You can hoard money and accumulate large amounts of it. You can have a hundred times more than your neighbor, and you can dispose of it as lavishly or as niggardly as you please.

But there is only a limited amount of time, even if we live out beyond our three score years and ten. We can't get any more than our neighbors. We can't get more than a 24-hour allotment every day, no matter how we arrange matters.

We wouldn't squander a friend's money. We wouldn't dissipate his most valued possessions. Then why not be equally fair about his time, the most priceless thing he has, and the one thing we can never replace after we have wasted it.

ARE GREAT OBSERVERS—

Those paragraphers are great observers. One says: "At a party a man usually eats something he shouldn't, and a woman generally says something she shouldn't." Another remarks: "A man is always wanting someone to tell him how handsome he looks; a woman will just stand before a glass and see for herself."

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

The dramatic rendering of "High Fires" by McClure, will be given Sunday night at the First Methodist church by Rev. Albert W. Carlson.

The book portrays a striking drama, a cross section of real life with all the vivid colorings of heartfelt experience covering a period of years. The scenes are laid in Detroit, Mich., with some famous illustrations from the World War. As this is Armistice Day, Sunday some of the heroic struggles will be appropriate for the occasion.

The father, daughter and brilliant young lawyer who play the leading parts, throbs with humanism. The large group of men and women who make up the background resemble crowd psychology en masse. The climax of the scenes is a striking, startling picture which will touch deeply the sympathetic heart of the listener.

At the close you will feel as if you could kneel in prayer and thank God for great faithful souls who help make the world a better place for all of us to live in. For this occasion we invite all to come and enjoy this word picture, and especially all members of the American Legion, and other patriotic bodies with their auxiliaries. All seats free as long as they last.

DENY DIXON IS LOADED UP FOR CLINTON FIGHT

Management of Legion Team Refutes Statement

Final practice for the game with the Clinton Legion team at that city tomorrow afternoon, was held last evening at Brown's Field and tomorrow morning Coach Dee will put his men through light scrimmage work, then board a bus and start for Iowa.

"Dixon is coming to Clinton determined to even a 23-0 defeat at Dixon several weeks ago, and are reported to be 'strongly loaded' for the contest," is the comment of the Clinton Advertiser football expert. At the same time the scrum announces that Sunday's game will put the Clintonites in condition for the Armistice day battle with the Rock Island Independents.

The local management admitted that some change have been made in the lineup during the week, but deny "loading" for Clinton. This plan has not been very successful in past seasons and Coach Dee and Manager Ward Miller have changed the crew around in some ways to better ward off the Clinton attack and with a view of breaking up the passing of Belding.

Two new recruits have reported for duty this week and at the practice sessions have shown a great deal of speed, but it doubtful whether or not they will be engaged in tomorrow's battle. Manager Miller stated today that two new faces would appear in uniform tomorrow and Coach Dee would start them. One of these is a candidate for the fullback position and the second has been trying out for a place in the line. Grush, the heavy-weight prize fighter from Mt. Morris has turned in his uniform and quit the game for this season. Cone is another who is reported to have severed connections with the Legion crew. George Moore may be unable to make the trip as the Chicago Bears are said to be making him very attractive overtures.

THE LOSING SUCCESS.

It is a tragic story, that of "the David Harum of Stony Point" Balzac might have made a novel of it.

Fifty years ago Ezekiel Rose, a drug clerk at Stony Point—a little village with a revolutionary history a short distance up the Hudson from New York—announced that he was going to make a million dollars, and make it right there at home.

Friends laughed at him. But Ezekiel meant it. He saved his money. After a while he bought the store he worked in. Then he opened a general store. Little by little his activities grew until he handled just everything the people of the whole township needed. He guaranteed metropolitan prices and service, and made good. He kept fifteen delivery wagons running. He started his day's work at 5:30 in the morning and didn't leave the store until 10 at night.

Recently he sold the store and invested his money in other enterprises. He had made $1,900,000. He was 82 years old. He thought he would take things easier. And then the court was obliged to adjudge him incompetent and separate him from the fortune he had built up.

Why moralize? Many a man has done the same thing in one form or another. Perhaps, in a manner of speaking, most men do it. They are like the mountain-climber who, if he does finally arrive at the top, finds his strength to far spent to enjoy the prospect, or even to realize clearly what he has accomplished. Better stop at a satisfying goal half way up than struggle blindly on to such a losing success.

BEST MUSIC FOR ALL.

Speaking of a symphony concert program by one of the country's leading orchestras, broadcast recently contrary to the orchestra's usual policy, a radio editor remarks:

"In view of the widespread appreciation of this program, it is difficult to understand upon what theory the orchestra management can longer refuse to allow the orchestra's music to be broadcast.

"No such opportunity has ever before come to musicians to cultivate popular musical appreciation and advance the cause of music as broadcasting presents today. Even should broadcasting actually interfere with the size of the orchestra's visible audience (a theory which is exploded) broadcasting still ought to be worth while. The orchestra, playing to an empty hall, might be accomplishing better than in the past the purpose for which it is supported."

This last statement is based on the fact that the orchestra referred to, like several others in this country, never makes expenses but is supported by the contributions of wealthy citizens as a philanthropic institution.

When shall we have endowed musical organizations devoted to radio service, for the good they will do? That is pretty sure to come in time. Meanwhile it is not evident that, on mere commercial grounds, an orchestra depending on popular support has anything to lose by admitting the radio audience to its concerts occasionally.

JURIES.

Federal Judge Bondy's court in New York was at a standstill.

Several persons had demanded a jury trial and there wasn't a talesman in sight. Excuses of various kinds had enabled many called to escape jury service.

So the judge took three deputy marshals and went out to round up a jury from the streets.

It wasn't so long ago that revolutions were fought to establish the cardinal principle that every man is entitled to a trial by jury. In fact, the ruthless activities of the czar's secret police and the failure of many poor Russian peasants to obtain jury trials was one of the underlying causes of the Russian revolution.

And yet in this country we seem to think so little of this right that it is difficult to obtain juries.

LOCARNO.

The Locarno conference is one of the few truly hopeful signs of peace and reconstruction in Europe since the World War.

The meetings were marked by a sincerity of purpose which seemed to be lacking in previous conferences. This was particularly true of the representatives of France and Germany.

If these two countries show signs of a real desire for perpetual peace, the World War will not have been fought in vain.

PHILANTHROPY.

The action of A. Atwater-Kent of Philadelphia in employing of 30 of the greatest opera singers and musicians in the world for weekly radio concerts suggests that wireless may inaugurate a new form of philanthropy.

Radio may be the Carnegie library of the future. Its possibilities along this line can easily be imagined when you consider that radio probably reaches more people in one night than the Carnegie libraries do in a month.

BY CHESTER H. ROWELL.

In another month President Coolidge will "have Congress on his hands" and there are indications that he plans to assume that aggressive personal leadership which his temperamental and traditions have made him reluctant to undertake. Let us hope so.

For better or worse, the Roosevelt precedent, that what Congress does is chiefly the president's business, is still our only refuge from inefficiency and inaction. We may some day devise a better system, but until we get it, there is nothing to do but operate the present one.

President Coolidge is in an exceptionally fortunate position to do so. Even his opponents concede his popularity with the people. His policies, so far as the people know and understand them, have their support. If there are any new and unfamiliar ones, the confidence of the people will tend to bring them to the president's aid.

What they want is for Congress to do so, too. Only vigorous insistence by Mr. Coolidge personally, using the weapons which his office gives him, can accomplish that.

If one were to write on the daily developments of the work of the League of Nations in preventing another Balkan war, the articles should be dictated to the linotype five minutes before the last edition goes to press, with the telegraph wire clicking the last news as the proof was read. Then the comments might last until the next edition.

That method of instantaneous up-to-dateness being here impractical, it is sufficient to observe that if the war is prevented it means that the league has attained its majority. Greece evidently will keep exactly as much peace as it must. It will try to save face by pretending, if it can, that it yields to something else than the league.

But, for once, the league is united, determined and effective. It will take many precedents of this sort to establish the prestige of the league as invincible, but this one has gone a long way. Europe at least is tired of war.

Predictions are made that the human voice will soon be heard around the world. Except as a feat, it is already heard practically without terrestrial limit. It is physically possible for anybody, anywhere, to speak so that anybody, anywhere else, can hear him.

And that means that some new rules will have to be applied. When many persons are assembled in one room, to communicate with each other, they have to appoint a chairman or moderator, and whoever wishes to speak has to "get the floor." The chief function of the presiding officer, and of the parliamentary rules under which he operates, is to see to it that everybody does not speak at once, lest nobody be heard.

When the world becomes one room, the same condition exists. Free speech has to be curtailed. Only one at a time, or as many at a time as there are selective wave lengths, can speak, and there must be some one to supervise the order of it.

Would I do the banal thing and write and remonstrate with Melville Sartoris, or would I keep still and read the letters that come to me from time to time, just as I am doing now? I do not know which I would do. You see, Little Marquise, Melville Sartoris is the cleverest possible way, has fixed the whole thing so that I can solve my conscience easily. I can say to myself, "That man does not know whether I receive these letters or not. He just sends them out as kind of outlet to a heart surcharged with loneliness and a temperament which is romance personified. He's never before had a chance to dramatize himself in this way and he is reveling in it. I won't not dare to show Jack the letters that I have received from Melville Sartoris. They

by Olive Roberts Barton
NO. 18—"I SPY IN HIGH JINKS LAND"

Here he whispered into Mr. Corn Dodger's ear.

"What shall we do next?" asked the clown, who didn't like to be still for a minute.

"Let's play 'I spy,'" said the Jack O'Lantern.

"It isn't very dignified," said the Scare Crow.

"Then let's play 'Pussy-Wants-a-Corner,'" suggested the Hi Diddle Diddle Cat.

"I couldn't get into a corner," said the Big Fat Elephant.

"And I couldn't get out of one," said the Scare Crow. "I stood in a fence corner one whole winter and there I stuck."

"Say," said Mister Corn Dodger. "Don't you agree with anything?"

"Certainly," said the Scare Crow. "But I'll be honest with you, Mister Dodger. The reason I really object to it is—"

Here he whispered into Mister Dodger's ear.

Mister Dodger looked surprised. "Why, of course! I never thought of that," he nodded. "Well, we'll all go on and play without you then. But you can stay around base and make sure that no one peeps when he's in it."

Mister Scare Crow seemed satisfied and sat down.

"Who will be it?" asked Mister Corn Dodger next.

"I will," said Nick. "So he started to count. 'Ten, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty, sixty, seventy, eighty, ninety, a hundred. Then he called out:

"Ready or not you shall be caught. In your hiding hole, or not."

"I spy the elephant," he cried the very first thing when he opened his eyes.

He did not like the man any too well when he met him and now he would probably be thinking things about Syd that are not so. For, whatever may be Sydney Carton's feelings toward me—and up to date I have no reason for thinking they are anything more than the polite amenities—a man would have for the wife of his friend—I am sure that Syd is the most devoted and loyal friend to Jack.

I wonder if it ever came to a real showdown, if Sydney Carton would take my side or John's.

You know I would not have dared to put that question to anyone but you, Little Marquise, but as Melville Sartoris said, "the fact that you and I will never come face to face in this life, makes it easy for me to become really confidential to you, even more than I am with myself."

I know that sounds paradoxical, but I'm afraid Little Marquise, that sometimes I am not always quite honest with myself. I try to make myself think that I do not know that because of me, Sydney Carton has eyes for no other woman on this earth. That he has never told this to me by word or look or action, makes no difference. I am just as sure of it, Little Marquise, as you were sure in those far off days that you were beloved by the king, and that whatever you might be to anyone else on earth, you were the one woman he cared for more than all others.

Dear Little Marquise, I will probably not write you again until I come back from Ruth's. In the meantime, do not censure me for the disclosures I have made to you this morning. Every man or woman on earth must have someone or something for a confidant. I have chosen you for mine.

MONDAY—Letter from Prescilla Bradford to Mrs. Mary Alden Prescott

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service.

Many people consider appendicitis as a comparatively new disease, an ailment that up to a generation ago was not heard of. Appendicitis is as old as the human race. It was simply known by another name, or rather by a variety of other names, before it was discovered that the little organ called the appendix was causing all the trouble.

The first accurate and definite description of this disease was given by Dr. Reginald Fitz of Boston in 1886. Previous to that time the medical profession did not regard the appendix as the seat of any dangerous disease.

It is perfectly true that before 1886, diseases due to disease of the appendix, had been opened and drained, but the appendix had not been removed and the operation did not involve any extensive opening of the body cavity. In 1886, however, an operation for appendicitis was performed, an appendix removed, and the patient lived until 1919, in no way

"That's not fair!" cried the Big Fat Elephant. "I'm right behind this barrel and I know you can't see me. I can't see you, so how can you see me?"

"But you stick out all around," insisted Nick. "I can see you as easily as I can see the sky."

"My goodness!" said the elephant "You'd think I was as big as a barrel to hear you talk. All right, I'll be 'it' next time, but I'll play honestly and not pretend to see people when I don't."

"I spy the giraffe," said Nick after a bit, running back and tapping base. "Why how could you?" remarked the giraffe, blinking his eyes. "I had my head completely up in that tree and I'm sure as gunpowder that you couldn't see me."

"What do you think you are? An ostrich?" laughed Nick.

"I don't see how you could see me," complained Jack O'Lantern later. "I was in a very dark place."

"Yes, but you forgot to put your light out," said Nick.

"I don't see how you could see me either," remarked the Hi Diddle Diddle Cat. "I was behind the door."

"Your long tail stuck out," explained Nick.

Pretty soon everybody was found, so they began all over again. My but people hate to be found out!

What was it the Scare Crow whispered to Mister Corn Dodger.

Oh, nothing much. He just said he always dropped so much straw as he ran that it gave his hiding hole away. I don't know why he whispered it, I'm sure.

affected by the removal of that organ.

In order that you may understand something of the nature of appendicitis, it is first necessary that you know something about the appendix. You should know that man is one of the few animals having a vermiform appendix.

We do not know that it has any useful function. It has been called a rudimentary organ. Some people believe it is simply an organ that has deteriorated from the lack of use until it is now but a vestige of a once active and important part of the body.

The vermiform appendix is a finger-like appendage about three inches in length and a quarter of an inch in diameter, having a canal running throughout its entire length. It is situated at the end of the cecum, or large intestine, just below the point where the small intestine opens into the large intestine. It is found in the lower right side of the abdomen. Sometimes it is shorter than three inches, and specimens have been found that were between six and 11 inches in length.

About 1886, the year in which the appendix was recognized as the seat of various diseases of the abdomen, the great French bacteriologist, Louis Pasteur, was conducting his studies of the cause of the disease. He found that living germs were responsible for many infections of the human body and proved that germs were the agents which caused disease.

The discoveries of Pasteur were taken advantage of by Lister, the father of modern surgery, who applied his principles of cleanliness and strict asepsis to all operations, and revolutionized surgery.

Previous to this time surgical operations were attended with great risks because of the infection which set in after the operation. Now, however, these infections have ceased to appear and surgery has been brought to a stage that is comparatively safe.

The germs which cause appendicitis may enter the appendix through the blood or through the intestines, with which the appendix is connected. Apparently these germs may originate in distant parts of the body, in the tonsils, in bad teeth, or in the stomach. The structure of the appendix is such that it favors infection. There is a great deal of tissue which may easily become swollen, thus shutting off the canal and allowing the material retained to decompose the produce inflammation.

It may be said in general that any condition which tends to interfere with the drainage of the appendix into the large intestine is of importance in causing appendicitis. Free drainage of the appendix is essential to the healthy condition of the individual and the retention of any material in the organ may produce inflammation. The treatment of an attack of appendicitis is surgical.

Reynolds Wire Bowlers Drop Another Contest

The new pins on the Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys caused averages to topple and fall Thursday night when the Reynolds Wire team met and was defeated by the Lutheran church team. It was learned that new pins have to be hit pretty square to get the required results. Capt. Gerdes of the Reynolds team informed the players of both teams that the best bowlers he had were required to work nights at the plant so that he was forced to pick bowlers who were not as sure as the ones which were desired. One of the men could not show up at all last night and an outsider had to be substituted. The Lutherans were as regular and consistent as they ever could be. Capt. Shauls of the Lutherans bowled an average of 156 and was high total man with a score of 499. The new pins held every ones score down and no one was able to bowl a 200 score although Edous only missed it by seven pins in his first game.

The next and last game of this league will be played on next Tuesday night when the Inde-Penn Oil team meets the Christians.

The Inde-Penn bunch have not been defeated in the league and the Christians are the only last possible hope. Two new leagues will start week after next and all the teams that are now in the present league will be in one or the other of the new leagues. More will be said of that later.

The Dixon Y. M. C. A. does more to teach swimming than anything in this part of the country. This, however, is a work not confined to Dixon alone as many records have been lured by Association men. This past summer many records were broken with Y. M. C. A. men coming up prominently in the final account.

Walter Spence, of Brooklyn-Central Y. M. C. A., by winning the Metropolitan A. A. U. 300-meter Championship medley swim, at North Bergen, N. J. on August 8, "Covered 330 yards or 2 yards more than 300 meters, in 4:31½ and shattered his own international standard of 4:39, hung up at Shark River Hills one week before," said the New York Times. "Robert Hosie of Central Y. M. C. A. the only contender, was close up." Edward Killis, of the same association, won the 110 yard handicap in 1:14½.

One week before, Johnny Weissmuller, of the Illinois A. C., formerly a Chicago Y. M. C. A. boy, smashed the world's record in the 100 yard free style at the National A. A. U. meet in Seattle, with a time of 0:50½. The same day, Harry Glancy, of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. which started in the meet as an organization, won the 300-yard medley and the mile free style.

LIBRARIAN HIRED FOR FRANKLIN TO SUPERINTEND WORK

Growth of Institution in Village Made Official Necessary

Franklin Grove, Nov. 5.—The library board held a meeting Monday evening and decided that the library had outgrown volunteer work. The books have so increased in numbers, especially the reference books, that the ones who were willing to do the work were not able to attend to the loaning and returning of books and at the same time become acquainted with the books enough to be of any help to the members in the choice of books. The board decided to hire Miss Clara Lahman to act as librarian. Miss Lahman is willing and will soon be able to help anyone find the book they wish on any subject, if it is in the library and it is not on the list she will report it to the book committee, who if possible, will get the book. To be able to do this, however, the library must have the help of all members, not only in renewing their own memberships, but each one should get a new member. The fee is only fifty cents a year, which is certainly very reasonable. The library is open Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock, and Saturday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock. This gives the members two books a week. Every one who enjoys reading will be able to find something one will enjoy reading. We hope every one in town will boost the library by becoming a member of the Association. The book committee tries to obtain a list of new books as often as possible. Books are so much more expensive now than they used to be that most people do not wish to buy a very large number, but by joining the library one can get the latest books at a very small amount of money. The election of officers will be held the first Monday in December at 7 o'clock at the library and every one holding a card is entitled to a vote. It is hoped that every member will be there to show their interest in the library and in doing this be boosting one of the best things that our town has ever had. The ladies have for several years worked hard and have cheerfully given their time. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Petrie were entertained at dinner Sunday at the home of Jacob Vaupel and daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Amas Wilson entertained with dinner Sunday: Mrs. Flora Stultz of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wilson and family. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sidel, Glenn Dietrich and Betty Pierson motored to Rockford Sunday where they visited relatives. Rev. and Mrs. O. D. Morris were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Crum. The Woman's Club had a very enjoyable meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Senger. The program was given by the department of literature and was a study of modern authors. Roll call, "The book I liked best when a child," took one back to childhood days in a most delightful manner. Miss Alice Thornton read a paper on "Lew Sargent as a Wilderness Poet," giving much interesting information concerning the work of one of our latest poets. Mrs. Durkes read a review of John Bojar's new book which is a tale woven around the Scandinavian settlements in the wheat belt of the Dakotas. Miss Clara Lahman read an article from the Bookman "The Child in Modern Literature," which was very interesting to those who enjoy adult stories about children. The program closed with two short poems read by Mrs. Durkes—"Trees" by Gless Carman and "A Tatt of Flowers" by Robert Frost. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Thornton and daughter Miss Alice, Dec. 7, the department of American Homes having the program in charge. Those in the department are: Mrs. Mary

HOMELESS WAIFS IN PHILIPPINES ARE TRADED TO CHINESE FOR PIGS

By NEA Service
Manila, P. I.—Girls of American blood traded to Chinese for pigs—
Small boys locked in cellars and compelled to work as slaves in rice fields—
Children of 12 years of age and less sold to foreign masters like so many animals—
These outrages are occurring on the Philippine Islands, under the American flag.

To put an end to them a fund of $2,000,000 is being sought. A committee headed by Governor General Leonard Wood is engaged in raising the money, and has sent appeals to the United States for help.

18,000 of them. The children for whom protection is being sought are some 18,000 in number—unfortunate, nameless children of American fathers and native mothers, who are usually left to shift for themselves almost as soon as they are old enough to talk, or are sold into slavery by the untaught peasant women who bore them.

These luckless youngsters, then, are partly of American blood, born under the American flag—exposed from the time they leave their cradles to lives of suffering. The boys usually wind up as virtual slaves on back-country plantations. The fate of the girl perhaps had best be left to the imagination. Instances have been known where they were sold outright to Chinese for cash or even for pigs or some other commodity.

The government is unable to give these children the protection they should have. Some system of free schools and homes is needed.

Need $2,000,000. Public spirited residents of the islands are doing all they can to relieve the situation, but shortage of funds hampers their efforts. The $2,000,000 that is being asked will be sufficient to provide care and protection for all of the children, it is believed.

Protestant and Catholic church schools are caring for some children now, and the American Guardian Association, the organization which is seeking the fund, is looking out for an additional number.

But until the amount asked is collected, adequate protection cannot be given.

Mrs. Mary Frances Korn of New York and Chicago, who has been active in the relief work here, has sailed for America at the request of Governor General Wood to take an active part in the appeal for funds.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore was to announce her engagement by midnight or he would be in the next step—perhaps we had better telephone the police at Greenwich.

"Perhaps," suggested the withered little lawyer croakily, since there seemed to be no other offers of advice as to the next step—perhaps we had better telephone the police at Greenwich.

Miss Celimena found her voice at that, and screamed: "Police! What for?"

"Why—eh—it's the customary thing, Miss Celimena, when a person is missing. Nothing to be alarmed about—quite the contrary, I assure you."

His eagerness to reassure was more alarming than openly expressed doubt. But Miss Celimena's long years of repression stood her in excellent stead now. She was up against something frightening and unpleasant, but after that first terrified outcry, she had herself well in hand.

"The telephone is on that table behind you," she said quite calmly. "Will you call them, please, Mr. Brewster?"

She stood at his shoulder quiet and controlled while he talked over the wire for several minutes. At length he turned to her to ask, "They want to know how she was dressed when you last saw her?"

Then, indeed, for a flash, a quiver passed across the set face. It hurt Miss Celimena, even in the midst of her fears for Connemara's safety, to tell an outsider that a Moore had so completely forgotten family tradition and dignity as to disappear in the unflattering garb of a Dominican Sister at a fancy dress ball.

"Tell him," she gasped faintly, "it was a masquerade—nun's dress."

Brewster did so, describing the costume with painful conscientiousness. They saw him listen intently, while a look of dawning horror and incredulity slowly spread over his face. Then he said jerkily into the mouthpiece, "Thank you—yes, I'll tell her," and hung up the receiver.

"What is it?" Miss Celimena asked, with feverish eagerness. "He had some news; I saw it in your face."

"A traffic officer held up a car about eleven in Greenwich on speeding, and let them go when he found there was a nun in it, on her way, she told him, to an emergency case," the lawyer said slowly.

"My description and the officer's tallied exactly. Fortunately—or unfortunately, I'm not sure which—he put one thin hand confusedly to his head—the man took the license number. There was no one in the car, but the nun and a well-dressed, young man who was driving."

"Go on," Miss Celimena said hoarsely. "Can't they look up the number and find out whose car it was?"

Brewster hesitated. "They—did," he said; then, brusquely: "The number was that of a car reported stolen yesterday morning from New Haven."

CHAPTER V

Ed Struler
By Ed Streeter

The car stopped just outside the door of the engine room. A sickly, sweet smell of hot oil came billowing forth into the close passageway, driving before it the sharp, salt smell of seaweed and the faint odor of musk.

Sister Connemara stared straight ahead at the back of a huge truck which effectually corked out any breeze which might be travelling across the Sound.

"Haven't we?" insisted Lacy—"haven't we met somewhere before?"

"My orders," replied the demure creature beside him, "forbid the discussion of frivolous and trivial topics with men."

There was a warning toot from somewhere above. Engines clanked laboriously. After one or two preparatory shivers the boat moved slowly forward, leaving the ferry slip lights to waste their rays over a half acre of dancing foam.

Connemara released her grip on the blanket. "At least we are out of Connecticut."

"Out of Connecticut into New York," replied her companion gloomily. "What's the difference? We can't spend our lives running out of one state into another without any idea what it's all about. It doesn't make any sense."

SUNDAY EXPECTED TO BE GREAT DAY AT REVIVAL MEET

Christian Church Will be Scene of Fine Services Sunday

Those who may respond to the appeals of the evangelistic invitations in the local Christian revival are made to understand by the preaching that they are called to a real life of industry and loyalty for Christ and the church, and even to hardship and suffering on the side of God and the right.

Mr. Williamson believes that a converted person must bear his cross in the likeness of his Savior. This sacrificial life was stressed in last night's sermon especially, when the story of the patriarch Abraham's trial in the call for him to sacrifice his son Isaac, was made the theme for exposition. Abraham responded and stood the test. Satisfied that the command came from God, he hesitated not in the face of what seemed so harsh and cruel an order.

A part of the sermon ran: "This, 'father of the faithful,' this friend of God' may be called the 'Here am I, Lord' of the Bible. God always found him ready. In this wonderful scene, his son's innocent question, 'Behold, the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?' brought out the glorious response of true and unshakable faith, 'God will provide Himself the lamb for a burnt offering, my son!'"

God Will Provide
"How many parents know before their children and a watching world a sincere faith that God will provide? When you are at the limit of your ability and endurance, do you manifest a reliance on God, the Great Provider?"

Isaac asked for the offering lamb. John the Baptist answered, centuries later, as he pointed men to Jesus, and said, 'Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world! And as Isaac carried the wood for his own altar, so did Christ go forth bearing His own cross.'

The Saturday night services will be no different from others, and Miss Graves' two solos and Mr. Williamson's standard of sermons will make the evening a fully worthwhile one. There will be baptism again, and the hour and a half period will afford a splendid preparation for a better Sunday for all.

Expect Great Sunday
Mrs. Williamson will supply her husband's pulpit in Rock Island tomorrow, as she often does, so that the Dixon pastor will be present here in all of Sunday's meetings. Expectations are high in the congregation for a truly great occasion of blessing, and the manifestation of God's Spirit in high power.

Five Rock Island members drove up for last evening to see and hear their minister, and groups were also introduced from Polo, Rock Falls and Elmhurst. A further inquiry by the pastor showed a large number present from other Dixon churches, as there have been nearly every evening.

Pastor H. E. Shiffer of Rock Falls gave the opening prayer. He and his church have arranged for Mr. Claver of Dixon to assist in a revival in Rock Falls beginning Dec. 1.

Italian Druggist Asks Those in U. S. Pay Debt
Detroit (AP)—Gaetano Napolitano, operating a chain of drug stores here, has proposed that Italians in America "chip in" and pay the Italian war debt to the United States. He believes those who benefitted by the war and not those who suffered, should pay the obligation.

In a letter on his business stationery headed "Viva L' Italia," and addressed to "Italians in America," he says, "Come in, Italians. Let us show Americans what we can do."

In his communication which he dispatched not only to his compatriots in the United States, but to President Coolidge, Premier Mussolini, and other high ranking officials in America and Canada, Mr. Napolitano named himself as the first subscriber to the idea with a contribution of $100 a month.

MAROONS, RAZED TO LIMIT, STAND IN FINAL TRENCH

Will Chicago Wake Up and Stop Grange? is Question

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—"Can Stag beat Red Grange?" was the question for debate with the Chicago Maroons, undefeated in the Big Ten, upholding the affirmative, and Illinois, riding the high tide of its gridiron career, supporting an emphatic negative.

Chicago's defense was geared to halt Grange and his interferers, who did what the Maroons failed to do in upsetting Pennsylvania. The defense of the Stagmen, hitherto sluggish, was primed to do as Nebraska and Michigan did in defeating Illinois—crash through and smash plays before they were launched.

Illinois has scant chance of retaining a place among contenders for the Big Ten title. But it can relegate Chicago into the discard and that is its objective. Both teams were re-energized to full fighting strength.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A three ring football circus, with first class side-shows, is offered for the approval of midwest football fans today. In the big show are Chicago-Illinois at Urbana, Michigan-Northwestern at Urbana, and Iowa-Wisconsin at Iowa City.

"Red" Grange is the main attraction. To see his performance 70,000 persons have staged a veritable circus parade of costly limousines and battered cavers over the roads of Illinois into the $2,000,000 Illinois Memorial Stadium.

Chicago Is Razed
The Chicago Maroons are the masked marvels. Downed by Pennsylvania, which left before Grange and his Illinois Stagmen have been caustically criticized. Their power is plentiful, but their offensive is sluggish, only because of defensive strength have they remained unbeaten in the Big Ten.

Illinois on the other hand, though beaten in two conference starts, has a formidable attack based on Grange and a perfected interference for him. The wild animal act is the meeting of Michigan's Wolverines and Northwestern's wild cat in Soldiers Field, gain's uncrossed goal and its leader, Chicago's Municipal stadium. Michigan of the Big Ten are the inspirations for a sparkling performance from Friedman, Aolenda, Gilbert and Oosterbaan. Baker's trained toe is Northwestern's hope, but his damaged ankle may keep him out of the arena most of the time.

Fry Bears Burden
"Play Boy" Wesley Fry, instead of "Cow Boy" Nick Kutsch bears the brunt of Iowa's offering against Wisconsin. The Hawks are undefeated and are favorites while the Badgers have been downed and tied in previous starts.

The leading side show event is the interstate clash of Ohio State and Indiana at Columbus. Since both have been defeated, the result has slight bearing on the conference title race. Purdue and Minnesota seem destined to outshine their respective foes, Marquette at Lafayette and Butler at Minneapolis.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Michigan, with everything to lose and Northwestern, with everything to gain, meet in Soldiers Field, Chicago's Municipal Stadium, before a probable crowd of 35,000 fans. The field is muddy.

Fresh from its overwhelming defeat of the Navy last week with its goal uncrossed and its hopes for the Western Conference title high, Michigan is a topheavy favorite. The Wild Cats, considerably tamed because Baker's injured ankle may keep him out of most of the game, hope only for an upset or at least a favorable showing.

Edwards, Michigan's star tackle, is out, but his place is ably filled by Babcock, an aggressive forward. Schumaker, who substitutes for Baker in the Wild Cat lineup made a good showing when the Purple downed Indiana.

MOOSEHEART H. S. LAYS CLAIMS CHAMPIONSHIP

Team Has Record of Making Point a Minute in Its Games

Elgin, Ill., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Mooseheart high school's football team claims that unique distinction of being a "point-a-minute" combination. To date the Moosemen have played six games, winning all of them, and scoring 292 points in 288 minutes of actual playing time. The Moose goal has not been scored against.

Mooseheart is at present negotiating with four teams for a post season game on December 5th, away from home. The teams being considered are Hollywood, Calif., Portland, Ore., Lima, Ohio, and Elkhart, Ind.

The Moosemen openly claim the national prep championship and are willing to consider bookings with any and all contenders. In the past eight years, the team has won 48 out of 52 games played. Following is the 1925 season record of Coach Ben Oswald's eleven:

Mooseheart 54; St. Charles 0. Mooseheart 61; Elwood, Ind., 0. Mooseheart 62; Lakeview, 0. Mooseheart 33; Gary, Ind., 0. Mooseheart 39; DeKalb 0. Mooseheart 32; East Aurora, 0.

City Marshal Thomas Dodson tendered his resignation to the mayor and council at the regular meeting of the city dads and it was unanimously accepted. The marshal stated that his health did not justify his on-tying on a job that exposed him thirteen hours a day to all kinds of weather and that he had concluded to resign.

The marshal had given notice of his impending resignation before but was to remain on duty a week or ten days longer to enable the city officials to find a successor but a story that came to his ears caused him to quit his post at once.

His many friends regret that his health forces him to give up the position which he has filled in a creditable manner.

The mayor and council will not fill the position or some time, feeling that it is an important position, which should not be filled without due consideration. James Sweeney will serve as substitute for the time being. This will probably be followed by a temporary appointment.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower and head of a large hardware concern, is leaving town for two months. He has arranged to have an efficiency engineer take charge of his household during his absence. But he fails to inform his three grown children, Constance, Billy and Alice, of his plans.

MISS BROOKE, assigned to the job, takes charge of the Brooke mansion. He occupies the owner's quarters and turns the library into an office. The "children," finding no other way out, have concluded to petition Hedge for their monthly allowances. Alice is nominated as spokesman. She explains to Hedge, who wants to know whether it is expected that "these gratuities be continued."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

ALICE stifled an angry exclamation, flushed, and then nodded.

She could not stave her pride against a hundred dollars a month, particularly when she was "flat."

Hedge made some more figures.

"I will continue these gratuities," he said, abruptly.

"Allowances, please!" reminded Alice.

"Allowances, if you prefer it. One word is as short as the other. I shall, however, reduce them."

Constance rose out of her chair as if impelled by some unseen force.

She wheeled and glared across the room. Billy stopped in his tracks.

"All allowances will be reduced fifty per cent," announced Hedge, "until further investigation."

There was a mobilization of Brookes on the opposite side of the table. Alice was thankful for the arrival of her reserves.

"You are to cut—our allowances—in half," she asked slowly.

"In half—payable daily," said the efficiency man.

"Daily?"

"Daily."

Alice was frightened. She felt the reassuring hand of Constance on her shoulder and looked up at her appealingly.

"You do the rest, Connie," she murmured.

"I find," said Hedge as he continued to make rapid figures, "that your father has been paying two of you at the rate of approximately $8.66 a day, including Sundays and holidays, and the other at the rate of about $3.33 a day. Out of this what do you spend?"

"All," said Billy. "What did you expect?"

"What for?"

"Why, anything we want, of course!"

"Clothing—shoes—light or heat?" queried Hedge briskly.

"Most certainly not!" exclaimed Constance frigidly.

"Do you mean to tell me, Miss Brooke, that you, for example, do not at least purchase your clothing out of the sum of $2400 a year?"

Constance laughed, but it was mirthless. She glanced down at her dress, and continued to laugh.

"If you understood anything about gowns, you would not ask such a question," she said. "Of course, I do not use my allowance for any such purpose. It is wholly for personal expenses, as I see fit to use it."

"Clothes are personal, are they not?"

"Personal—perhaps," she admitted coldly. "But they are on father."

"And this is also true of you?" demanded Hedge, glancing sharply at Billy.

"And then some," declared Billy. "Why, I don't even buy gasoline out of mine!"

"Well," observed Hedge judicially, "if none of you employ your allowances in the purchase of food, clothing, or the necessities of life, which are otherwise provided by your father, I see no legitimate reason for any allowances at all."

There was a chorus of cries from the three Brookes.

"Nevertheless," he continued, "I am not disposed to be harsh; merely just. I am not here to tear down or destroy; simply to reorganize and regulate. While I feel that even a reduction of fifty per cent in your allowances does not fully meet this extraordinary situation, I shall not press the matter further at this time. Miss Brooke and Mr. Brooke, you will hereafter receive $3.33 per day each. Alice, you will be paid $1.66. All payments will be made daily, at eight-thirty o'clock in the morning in this office, and vouchers will be duly signed by each person receiving the same."

Constance was turned into a stony image. Alice was trembling, with a tell-tale quiver of her lips. Billy stormed.

"We won't stand for it!" he cried, shaking his fist across the desk.

"I'm sorry you look at it that way, Miss Brooke. It is simply good business. However, I'm willing to put it this way, if you object to a daily check—I will make weekly payments, at the end, however, rather than the beginning of the week. If you accept this arrangement, the first payment will be made a week from today."

Constance wavered. She had $2.79 left. Perhaps for a week she could stand it. But Billy and Alice were to be thought of. They were destitute. No; the pride of the Brooke family would have to grovel before this creature. It was the daily wage, or bankruptcy.

"We wish to talk it over," she said.

"Certainly," assented Hedge.

Constance led the way across the hall, through the big reception-room and into a far corner of the music-room, where they were safe from prying ears. It was Billy who spoke first.

"You made a fine mess of it, Alice!" he exclaimed.

"Alice did her best," declared Constance defensively. "Would you have done any better?"

"Well, why couldn't she have given him the idea we earned this money or something like that?"

"Earn it!" jeered Alice. "A lot we do to earn it, and you know it."

"He talks as if we were panhandlers," growled Billy.

"It—it was like standing on a bread line," groaned Constance.

"Come," interrupted Constance. "We've got to decide. It's half, or nothing."

"I won't take half!" stormed her brother.

"Do you want nothing, then? You know very well none of us ever had a bank account. We never even thought of asking for one, when father was here. Now, listen; you'd better take this fifty per cent offer, because if you don't, Billy, you won't have a cent to your name."

There was an inarticulate rumbling in his throat.

"And you'll be in the same fix, Alice, all of us," continued Constance. "We can't go around like beggars; you know it. For my part, I'm going to take mine."

"Can't we borrow the rest somewhere?"

"Billy!"

The proposal shocked Constance, because it assailed her Brooke pride.

"None of us will ever borrow, if I can help it," she said stoutly. Then, after a pause: "Well, now that we've accepted half, shall we take it by the day or the week?"

"Let's go back and fight for it by the month in advance," said Billy.

Constance shook her head.

"It would do no good," she said. "Don't you see how he's got us? He has all the money and we've only got $2.79 between us—and that's all mine. And I can see he is not going to change his mind. He hasn't yet, on anything. For my part, I can stand it by the week. But I'm thinking of you and Alice."

This is Month Star Gazers Get an "Eye Full"

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 6.—(AP)—This is the month star gazers should polish up their telescopes for the heavens will be full of unusual astral sights.

Prof. W. F. Meyers, associate professor of astrophysics of the University of California in a statement told of the stars that will be visible in November.

High in the northeast, the bright star Capella, the "She Goat" and the constellation known as Capella's Kids, will be clearly visible this month.

Prof. Meyers said. Capella, the fifth in the heavens in the order of brightness, is a yellow star, nearly the same color as the sun.

"Mira the Wonderful," which is approaching its maximum brightness, will be seen in the southern sky while over in the east the great star Aldebaran with its diameter of thirty million miles, will be visible.

"Also in the east is the Pleiades group, known as the 'Seven Sisters' though only six are conspicuous, more than 100 self luminous bodies can be seen in this group," the professor said, and their distance from the earth "is not less than ten million times that of the sun."

Girl Who Was Spanked to Make Her Sing Opera Star

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A wait who was spanked in a Methodist parsonage because she danced and be-cause she did not study music, has risen to stardom. When Mary Lewis was a girl in Little Rock, Ark., her foster-father, a Methodist minister, used to spank her to make her study music.

Today at 25, she has a contract to sing with the Metropolitan Opera Co. She will make her debut later in the season.

When she was 15, she ran away with a vaudeville company which stranded when it got to California. She became a moving picture bathing beauty. In 1920 she heard which Village Folies in New York, then beauty. The next step was the Green-Gardner Farrar sing "Madame But-terfly," and decided she would sing it too. Three years later she was singing opera in Europe.

She doesn't like to be known as a former Folies girl. She says: "It gives people the impression you have good looks and pretty legs, but no brains."

DISTURBANCE IN A LOCAL THEATRE.

The patrons of a local show house were very much disturbed and annoy-ed by the continuous coughing of a lady in the audience. Don't be a nuisance because you have a cough or cold. A few doses of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND taken promptly will bring speedy relief from coughs, colds and hoarseness.

Mrs. W. T. Gray, White Plains, Va., writes, we have used FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for colds and had coughs with splendid results." Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Good Thoughts for Good People

It is certain that as our love for God, good, increases, so does our tenderness grow towards our fellow-men. It were well, therefore, to recognize the value of tenderness and seek to cultivate it. That is to say, we should strive for a greater understanding of the love of God, knowing that the understanding will manifest itself in greater tenderness in all our human relationships.

A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

Christ Jesus.

There is nothing to do with men but to love them; to contemplate their virtues with admiration, their faults with pity and forbearance, and their injuries with forgiveness.

It is toleration in the broadest and most inclusive sense, a liberality of mind, which gives to the opinions and judgments of others the same generous consideration that it asks for its own.

His heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong.

I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven; for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the un-just. Matthew.

Wife of Congressman of Galesburg Dist. is Dead

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Edward J. King, wife of Congressman King of Galesburg, died suddenly at their home here this morning.

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

SATURDAY, NOV. 7

If so, you are quick tempered. You are hard to get along with. You must learn to restrain your im-pulses.

You are too impetuous. And you jump wildly at conclusions. When angry you exaggerate facts. And you cannot be reasoned with.

But you are quick to realize your mistakes. And you are ready to atone for them. You have a usually happy disposition. You will be fickle and changeable in love.

SUNDAY, NOV. 8

If so, you have great mental power. You are determined and self-confident. You are not easily discouraged. And see all things through to the finish.

You have an artistic temperament. And you will spend much money to satisfy it. You will have a beautiful home. Which will cost you a fortune to fur-nish.

But your happiness lies in your home environment.

Raymond Griffith is one star they all buy tickets to see without even asking what the picture's all about. Already they know that when they see this debonaire little chap on the screen they are going to be entertained with real, clean, original fun and they are going to leave the theatre all laughed out. We don't have to tell you it is funny—you know it is.

Time Tried and Tested

The Ranges that in the past wore the longest and worked the best were made exactly like the ranges this store sells today. True, now-a-days, finish and conveniences have been greatly improved but years of experience have proved that certain materials and type of construction cannot be discarded without injury to the value of the range.

No matter what kind of stove you desire—coal or wood, gas, combination, oil, gasoline or electric you will find the best the world affords at this store.
